WHO'S UNCLE SAM'S FIREBUG'

Third and Disastrous Incendiary Fire at Willett's Point.

Co!. King, in command at the Torpedo School, Willett's Point, L. I., is trying to solve an interesting mystery. Incendiaries fired a large warehouse filted with the implements of the engineering corps, and to-

of the engineering corps, and today it is in asses.

The loss was about $100,000.

This is the third incendiary fire in the neighbefrhood in three weeks. The fire in the big storehouse was discovered just as taps were sounded Saturday night, and the 400 soldlers stationed there instead of
"turning in" were resolved into a fire brigade.

"turning in "were resolved into a fire brigade.

The assistance of the hook and ladder companies from Whitestone and Baysidewere needed to save the other buildings of the garrison, while the storehouse and its contents were completely destroyed.

The storehouse slood on the outskirts of the garrison and was in charge of Serge, Kelly, of Company A. Nome of the soldiers or attaches of the Post were allowed to enter it. It was 250 by 150 feet in size and one story high.

it. It was 250 by 150 feet in size and one story high.

In the building were stored nine $8,000 Fish torpedoes, together with the Symms and Edison e-certical apparatus for propeling size, 30,000 feet of oak pisns, fifty bales of rope, 10,000 shovels, 10,000 pickaaxes, a number of canvas boats, and several pontoon bridges that were used in the civil war.

Fortunately a quantity of powder and dynamite that had been stored there was removed to the new fireproof areanal two weeks ago.

The garrison gets its water supply from Finshing through a two-inch main. There is no direct telegraphic communication and by the time a despatch had reached Finshing by way of New York the reinforced pressure of water was useless for the inilding was in ruins. Fortunately the wind blew off-shore.

The last incendiary fire there burned the theatre. Col. King is trying to unravel the mystery and has telegraphed the War Department asking for reimbursement of the loss.

Finck was arrested April 13, 1886, on sench warrant, an indictment for bribery having been found against him April 12, 1886. He was released on 125,000 ball. Oct. 13, 1886, he was again arrested upon the same indictment, but was again released on $40,000 ball.

Finck is the last of the indicted boodlers outside of the "thirteen combine" to ask for the dismissal of the indictment against him. The indictment was found upon the testimony of ex-Alderman White.
